'Tips Fight Cowboys Tonight For 8th Home Court Win

By RON MUNGER

Tonight the Montana Grizzlies will be aiming for their fourth consecutive conference and eighth straight home court victory when they tangle with the Wyoming Cowboys in the Field House. The Grizzlies can strengthen their hold on second place with a win over the young and inexperienced Cowboys. The 'Pokes, meanwhile, would like to get back into the first division, and a victory over Montana would be a good start.

Wyoming is currently tied for fourth place in the conference with Denver University. The Cowboys have a league record of two wins and three losses and a season record of four wins and 10 losses.

Ev Shelton, Wyoming's fiery coach, is an advocate of defensive basketball. His teams have always been well coached in the fundamentals of ball control coupled with the stingiest of defenses.

Shelton is in his 16th year as head coach at Wyoming and his Cowboy teams have finished in the first division 14 times. Wyoming championships include the NCAA in 1943 and the mythical world championship that same year. The Cowboys have won Skyline conference seven times.

Wyoming Stars

Wyoming has been sparked this season by the play of Tony Windis, 6-1 sophomore guard. Windis is the team's playmaker and is very accurate on long set shots. Junior forward Terry Eckhardt is the leading Cowboy scorer and one of their better rebounders.

Dave Bradley, 6-8 senior, has been moved to the center position after regular center Kent Bryan was dropped from school because of scholastic difficulties. Bradley had been playing forward. Don Carlson, 6-3 junior, will probably take over Bradley's forward position.

Sophomore guard Phil Mulkey further weakened Wyoming's chances when he was dropped from the squad yesterday for disciplinary reasons. Junior letterman John Sharp will probably take Mulkey's position in the starting lineup.

Not Just 'Pennies from Heaven' Are Needed by Religion School

It's going to take more than Pennies from Heaven" to keep up with the expenses of the Affiliated School of Religion if the student enrollment continues to increase as it has in the past.

That's the big problem Dean Ferm, Director of the Affiliated School of Religion, is presently facing. It's a question of where all the money come from?

Dean Ferm's money problems stem from the fact that the Religion School is affiliated with but not part of the University, and thus is entirely supported by outside contributions.

Student enrollment in the school has jumped from a low of 81 students in 1953-54 to a high of 435 in 1955-56 and the enrollments for this year have increased even more.

Presently there are two people on the school's faculty, Dr. Ferm, who does all the teaching, and Dan Ross, assistant director, who takes care of all the outside student activities.

Dr. Ferm, who was recently presented a distinguished service award by the Missoula Junior Chamber of Commerce, has a 200 hour annual work load as compared to the average professor's 600 hours.

Liberal Arts Club Hears Talk on Montana History

There is no particular characteristic in Montana's 19th century history, John W. Smurr, instructor in History and Political Science at the Liberal Arts club Tuesday.

Speaking on, "Montana, Product of the 19th Century," Smurr said that the growth of farming, labor and capitalism came simultaneously. The clashes between the cattlemen and the sheepmen were not violent as compared with those of the southwest at the time.

Speaking about the boundaries of the western states, Smurr said there seems to be no real reason for the "Square states." It may have been because the shortest distance between two points is a straight line.

Because of the increased enrollment and the excessive work-load Dr. Ferm has to carry, plans were recently formulated to add a new member to the staff next year.

The school has three sources for financial support; first from national, state and local churches, second from interested individuals and parents and third from interested local businesses.

"Last year the school's budget was $10,000, this year it's $12,000 and with the addition of a new faculty member the budget will jump to $17,000 next year," Dr. Ferm said.

"I've thought of passing the poorbox in church or standing outside with a tin cup but I don't think the students would go for that," he said.

"Outside of state aid the only solution to our problem is to have students, who feel they have been helped by the school, ask their parents and interested individuals to help us," he concluded.

Oxford Debate May Draw Duo

MSU may send two debaters to England this spring as a result of yesterday's Pub-Travel committee meeting.

Pub-Travel voted to give the Debate and Oratorical Association $300 to help defray expenses for the proposed trip.

Oxford asked MSU to send two debaters to England this spring and the English school has tentatively set May 2 for the debate.

Don Mosher and Jerry Rutan would represent MSU on the trip. Besides the debate with Oxford, other debates are being arranged with the University of London and the University of Leeds.

The debate organization needs approximately $1200 for the proposed trip. Debate and Oratorical Association gave the two boys $600. The rest of the money may have to be earned by Mosher and Rutan, Dee Scriven, Pub-Travel chairman, said.

27.34 Per Cent Of Students Make Honor Roll

Names of students making the honor roll were made public in yesterday's Kaimin. There were 326 names on the list. 184 were men; 142 were women. There were 2089 men and 777 women enrolled in the University last quarter.

This means that approximately 8.8 per cent of the men and 18.26 per cent of the women enrolled made the honor roll.

All this seems to have happened before. The figures for Spring Quarter, 1956, reveal that the University men's grade index was 2.439. This contrasted with the University women's grade index of 2.721, making an all-University index of 2.519.

The state of affairs is made clear when it is shown that only one men's living group, a fraternity, topped the University grade index. On the other hand, only one women's living group, a dormitory, was below the all-University grade index.

Several causes were advanced to explain these statistics. Miss Maurine Clow, Associate Dean of Students, said that the emphasis on scholarship shown by the sororities and the junior sponsors in the freshman girls dormitory has helped make MSU women study conscious.

Tom Monahan, assistant to the dean of students, also had reasons to explain the comparatively poor showing made by MSU men. "Participation in athletics and having to get part-time work pull many men's grades down," he said. Monahan also suggested that many students owning cars use them for joyriding instead of utilizing the time for studying. He also said that the hours women have is a contributing factor.

House Passes Ike's Doctrine

WASHINGTON (P)—The Eisenhower Doctrine yesterday won its first big victory in Congress.

The House of Representatives voted 355 to 61 in favor of the President's so-called "fight-if-we-must" plan to protect the Middle East from Communism.

It was far from a party-line vote, as the 61 votes against the Mid-East resolution were cast by 35 Democrats and 26 Republicans.

The House vote gave the President pretty much what he asked. It handed him authority to use American soldiers, if necessary, to help any Middle Eastern nation which asks for aid in fighting off a Communist aggressor.

It also gave Mr. Eisenhower a virtual blank check to spend an extra $200,000,000 in the Middle East any way he sees fit before June 30. There's only one string. No single country is to receive more than $30,000,000 dollars.

Now the resolution has to clear the Senate, where some Democrats are continuing their vigorous opposition, and where there have been bitter attacks on Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Mr. Eisenhower yesterday again expressed his complete faith in Dulles. He told his news conference that he stands on his statement of a year ago that Dulles is the greatest Secretary of State he's ever known.

Little Man on the Campus

Steam Valve

Dear Editor:

Before sending out various other critics to review various campus activities, it might be best if you supplied them with information regarding the proper way to write criticism. I am prompted in writing this letter after reading Miss Jackson's review of Masquers' "Importance of Being Earnest" in the Wednesday Kaimin.

It might be that Miss Jackson had to meet a deadline with her story, but it does not excuse the fact that she should, as must all critics, become familiar with the field to be criticized.

There are various types of reviews appearing in your paper from time to time. Some of them are non-critical praises of the entire production, where everything is lovely, the acting is fine and the settings are enhanced immeasurably by pretty lighting and effective make-up. This is hardly a critical analysis of the play or production, but it makes everybody feel good all over. Also the opposite view has been taken, where the critic spares nothing, tears down anything that might resemble competence and either succeeds in keeping audiences away from the show, or sends them in flocks of curiosity.

Most of the criticisms fall into the category Miss Jackson's recent effort found itself in, but I can find no category in which to place this review of "Earnest."

Her opening sentence tells us that the first act "dragged" (a hideous word), and the second and third sentences tell us where the play is being held and when. Her third paragraph is most likely an attempt to say something about the quality of the writing while criticizing the artificiality of the actors. Miss Jackson obviously has no conception of the meaning of Mr. Wilde's play.

She makes no real attempt to discuss the literary value of the play or the style in which it was presented; and if either or both were effective or not. "Earnest" was not a play written to be staged in arena style, and surely this type of production must have added to or detracted from it.

As to your critic's evaluation of the characters in the play, the same things might be said. She has either missed completely the significance of each person in the play, or she has misinterpreted them drastically. She speaks of "convincing" portrayals and "for the most part well done" characterizations, but tells us nothing of the characters themselves; and she certainly attempts no constructive criticism of any of them. (It is particularly distressing to find that Mr. John Melton is "another 'natural'" without finding out what he is "natural" about.)

Possibly Miss Briggs was nervous. The character of Gwendolen demands it, and Mr. Cusker's Algernon might have been "bored with it all." (Algy invents the Bunbury for that very reason.) As to Mr. Cusker's "sparkling" in those "couple of scenes" and the image this viewer has of the "two main actors coming together" leaves much to be desired as any sort of good journalism or criticism. It might be mentioned also that Mr. DeLange was the only actor who maintained a consistent accent and that there is no "death" scene in the play. (It is, after all, a comedy.) Interesting, too, the fact that Miss McLeod was helpful in shining up Miss Sullivan so she could sparkle "at the end."

The crowning moment in Miss Jackson's review, however, is saved for the last paragraph, (a breathless sentence), where she states that the "Masquers" took a difficult play and lent their talents in a commendable attempt to bring out a sometimes not too clear point. This pretty well sums up Miss Jackson's review, too. Her point is by no means clear and it hardly makes any sense at times in attempts at criticism and cleverness. (Cleverness is the only reason I can attribute to those words she has put in quotation marks.)

Miss Jackson, Brooks Atkinson has done some "commendable" reviewing for another newspaper, and there are many other excellent Theatre critics in this country. I am not asking you, nor expecting you, to match these professional people with your writings, but it might do anyone who attempts to criticize future campus productions well to study these criticisms, to attend many plays and motion pictures and approach them with a critical attitude; and also the reviewer might read a play from time to time, just to keep up with things.

Doug Giebel

(Ed. Note: Miss Jackson was paid by the Kaimin to review the play, not to sell tickets for the Masquers. The director had enough confidence in Miss Jackson to ask her to review the production. Many observers said the first act "dragged" so why not say it in print. Perhaps you should take a suggestion from Jerry Williams and Frosty Cox who let criticism act as guide, not a blackball.)

Phi Delta Theta Defeats Sigma Chi in Top Contest

Phi Delta Theta defeated Sigma Chi 38-28 in the big intramural basketball attraction Monday night.

The game was close during the first quarter and the lead changed hands several times. The Phi Delt moved ahead in the second frame, and held a 21-14 advantage at the half.

Sigma Chi moved to within two points of the victors during the third quarter, but weren't able to close the gap. Schulz was the big gun for PDT with 17 points. Thomas scored 9 for Sigma Chi.

In "B" league play Monday, Phi Sigma Kappa and Sigma Phi Epsilon both came out losers when neither team showed up for the game.

The Left Overs downed Elrod hall 58-30 in the "C" league. Wersland of the Left Overs was high for the game with 21 points. Mills and Roff each hooped 10 points for the losers.

The Sigma Chi "B" team took another one on the chin Monday when the Gunners dropped them 57-33. It was their third loss in as many games. Gorsich scored 11 for the winners while Fox put in 10 points for the losers.

The Loggers clipped Craig 3rd West 34-27 in an "E" league game Monday. The game was marred by many fouls on both sides. Moorhouse hit 14 for the Loggers and Thompson had 13 points for Craig.

Tuesday's Contests

In "A" loop play Tuesday, the Nesters trounced Sigma Alpha Epsilon 86 to 34. The Nesters completely dominated the game, using their superior height to great advantage.

The score was 56-19 at the half. Renning led the winners with 17 points. The winners had three other men who hit in double figures. Linn hit for 12 markers for the SAE's.

The Braves defeated the Olympians 58-26 in a "B" league contest Tuesday. Remington and Blackly each scored 13 points for the winners. Pelo led the Olympians with 7 points.

Theta Chi edged out Pharmacy 34-31 in a thriller Tuesday afternoon. Tempers flared on both sides during the closely contested game.

Griffin of Theta Chi was high scorer with 17 points. Raunig aided the Pharmacy cause with 13.

The Rinks outlasted the Skunks Tuesday in another game between two evenly matched teams. The score was tied 22-22 at the half of the "D" league game.

Johnson led the winners with 17 points. Agamenoni and Kee put in 12 apiece for the Skunks.

The Gal. Goslin administered a 61-19 drubbing to the Brunswick Bombers in the only other game played Tuesday.

The Bombers scored only 7 points in the first half and weren't able to do much better in the second. Fink was the top man for the game with 19 points.

Sal Maglie Hits Robbie's Remarks

NEW YORK (U)—Another former Brooklyn teammate has criticized Jackie Robinson for recent remarks.

First, it was Roy Campanella who said Robinson should have refrained from popping off. Now, veteran right-hander Sal Maglie has agreed.

Maglie called the retired Robinson a "pop off" who hurts people and then "writes them letters of apology."

Maglie referred to Robinson saying Milwaukee lost the pennant because of night clubbing by a few players, and also to Robinson's opinion that Campanella was through. Robinson later apologized for both remarks.

Maglie said he admired Robinson's playing but felt it a "damn shame" a great player like that had to say such things.

'Tips' Pokes . . .

Last year Joe Capua led the Cowboys to a 93-69 victory over Montana. Capua set a new conference single game scoring record against the Grizzlies, hitting 51 points in this game. The 'Tips, led by Ed Argenbright with 19 points, defeated the 'Pokes, 59-56, in the return game in Missoula. Wyoming has won 12 of the 14 games the two teams have played since 1941.

Grizzlies

The Grizzlies are in good shape for this encounter. Russ Sheriff has been improving with each day, and Ray Howard's knees seem to be a lot better. The 'Tips will need both Sheriff and Howard to cut down on Wyoming's height advantage.

If Sheriff, Al Dunham and Howard can get their share of the rebounds, and Clancy Waters, Zip Rhoades and Hal Erickson continue their fine play, the Cowboys will be in for a lot of trouble.

Probable starting lineups:

Rhoades	F	Eckhardt
Dunham	F	Carlson
Sheriff	C	Bradley
Erickson	G	Windis
Waters	G	Sharp

Olympic Champ Dies in Australia After Auto Wreck

MELBOURNE (U)—John Marshall, one of the world's top swimmers, died yesterday at the age of 26.

Marshall died as the result of injuries he suffered five days ago in an automobile accident.

Surgeons performed four operations in a vain effort to save the life of the young Australian, a former Olympic champion. His wife, Wendy, and his parents were with him at the time of his death.

Marshall smashed 28 world freestyle records between 1950 and 1954. He first attracted attention as a 16-year-old schoolboy when he broke four Australian freestyle records. He enrolled at Yale after winning Olympic honors at London in 1948.

It was as a Yale student that Marshall reached the peak of his career under the training of famed swimming coach Bob Kipthut. He turned in world record performances at freestyle swimming from 200 meters up to one mile. In 1950 Marshall was credited with more than 12 races in record time.

Fighters Needed Says Promoter

More fighters are needed immediately or the annual "M" Club fights will have to be cancelled, said John Boyle, fight promoter.

Four bouts have been arranged for the Feb. 14 show, but at least four more bouts are needed, Boyle said.

"This is the first time in the history of the fights that we do not have enough interest to put on a show," the promoter said. "In past years there has always been a surplus of fresh talent."

Boyle emphasized that no man will be matched over his experience, and veteran boxing handlers will look over every participant before matches are set.

"If the fights do come off as planned we will have the finest entertainment possible on the campus," Boyle said. "The football team ballet group will put on a demonstration."

The weighing-in ceremony is scheduled for 4 p.m. next Monday. Fighters should be there at that time and contact Tom Roe, Boyle said.

Money Keynotes NFL Sessions

PHILADELPHIA (U)—Money was the keynote as National Football League Commissioner Bert Bell broke bread with three player representatives.

The players opened the meeting by asking for a minimum salary of $5,000. Kyle Rote of New York, Norm Van Brocklin of Los Angeles, and Attorney Creighton Miller of Cleveland then made a few more requests.

They asked that the owners recognize the player organization, that injury clauses be put in contracts, and at least expense money during the exhibition season.

Bell said the meeting was very sociable. He added he will present the requests of the players when the owners gather for the annual winter meetings tomorrow.

Football Players Take Ballet; Improve Grace

By TED NEVILLE

If the football squad doesn't show a great deal of improvement in poise, balance and co-ordination next fall, it won't be the fault of the MSU coaching staff and Mrs. Marjorie Cooper, ballet instructor.

Six football players are enrolled in ballet this quarter, and Lauri Niemi, assistant coach, said that intentions are to eventually have the entire team signed up for the course.

Butorovich Was First

Bob Butorovich was the first team member to give ballet a try, Niemi said.

"He is a fine looking specimen. But, he seemed to lack agility and co-ordination. Ballet seemed to be the only thing, and it worked on him."

After the success with Butorovich, the coaching staff decided to have six additional members attend classes fall quarter with no credit allowed.

When attempts first were made to allow players to take ballet for credit, several problems arose. The major difficulty was that courses in ballet were already filled to desirable capacity.

In an attempt to solve this problem, Mrs. Cooper offered to give an extra hour of her time each day to teach the players in a separate class. However, it was later decided to register them in one of the regularly scheduled classes.

Another big problem was the idea that ballet was a "snap" course which the players could take to help insure eligibility.

No Snap, They Found

This problem solved itself, Mrs. Cooper said. When the men, who considered themselves to be in the best of condition, had finished their first 20 minutes of ballet, they were ready to vouch that it was far from a "snap."

All the footballers have received in the way of special consideration has been a stepped-up indoctrination into ballet.

"I've worked hard and quickly to make them realize that ballet is serious," Mrs. Cooper said, "and that a lot of hard work is involved."

"They were started on the fundamentals, but I've brought them along a lot faster than I normally would have in order to keep a challenge before them."

Other Schools Use Idea

Montana State University is not the originator of the idea, however. According to "The Dancer's Notebook," a coach of the Oklahoma City University basketball team, Doyle Parrack, tried it first, with well-publicized results. Wyoming has also instituted ballet courses in its curricula for athletes, Mrs. Cooper said.

The MSU coaching staff members who have watched classes have expressed surprise at the

Donation Received For Law Library

A gift of more than $200, donated to the law school by the family and friends of the late William B. Leavitt, Miles City attorney, will be used to establish a Leavitt Memorial Shelf in the Law House library, Dean Robert E. Sullivan has announced.

"The volumes purchased will be permanent additions to our library and will be in constant use by the law students and the lawyers who use the Law House facilities," Dean Sullivan said.

The MSU law library contains more than 33,000 volumes, excluding nearly 4,000 duplicates used for exchange purposes.

Meetings to Draw MSU Instructors

Justin Gray, associate professor of music, will present a special clarinet clinic and serve as consultant on woodwind instrument problems at the Wyoming Music Educators Clinic in Casper tomorrow and Saturday.

Dr. Andrew W. Halpin, professor of education, is at Ohio State University today through Saturday to serve as a consultant to the Department of Education. He will describe "A Paradigm for Research on Administrator Behavior."
